Development and recording[edit]The Breeders released their fourth studio album, Mountain Battles, in the spring of 2008, and the Deals continued writing new songs.. [8] They then sent the track to Mark Lanegan, who recorded his vocals elsewhere, and sent it back to them.. [1] Near the end of their 2008 tour, they were in the United Kingdom, and decided to record the new composition 'Fate to Fatal' at Fortress Studios in London.. [6] They had three original compositions that they wanted to release, but felt that this would be too short for an EP, so they decided to also do a cover of Bob Marley's 'Chances Are'.. It contains a Bob Marley cover ('Chances Are') and a song with vocals by Mark Lanegan. Syncmaster 244t Driver Download
